DESIGNER TESTIMONIALS

"Circaphiles is the kind of thing that will help keep designers competitive with the increasing trend of clients who think that they can either handle things or shop things themselves."

"The Circaphiles platform is at the forefront of community building within the design industry and it has been an honor to be a student ambassador for Circaphiles. As I prepare to emerge into the design industry as a professional, the Circaphiles platform has taught me how to prepare for the transition from the classroom to the professional world. I highly recommend Circaphiles to any emerging design professional that wants to supplement their studies."

MARGARET ASH

"With projects around the country and limited travel, we relied heavily on our contacts and networks both near and far. Circaphiles came to the rescue with multiple missions via vendor presentations and, with the official launch of the vendor contacts around the world, I can continue working on projects outside of San Francisco without having to travel as much as I am used to"

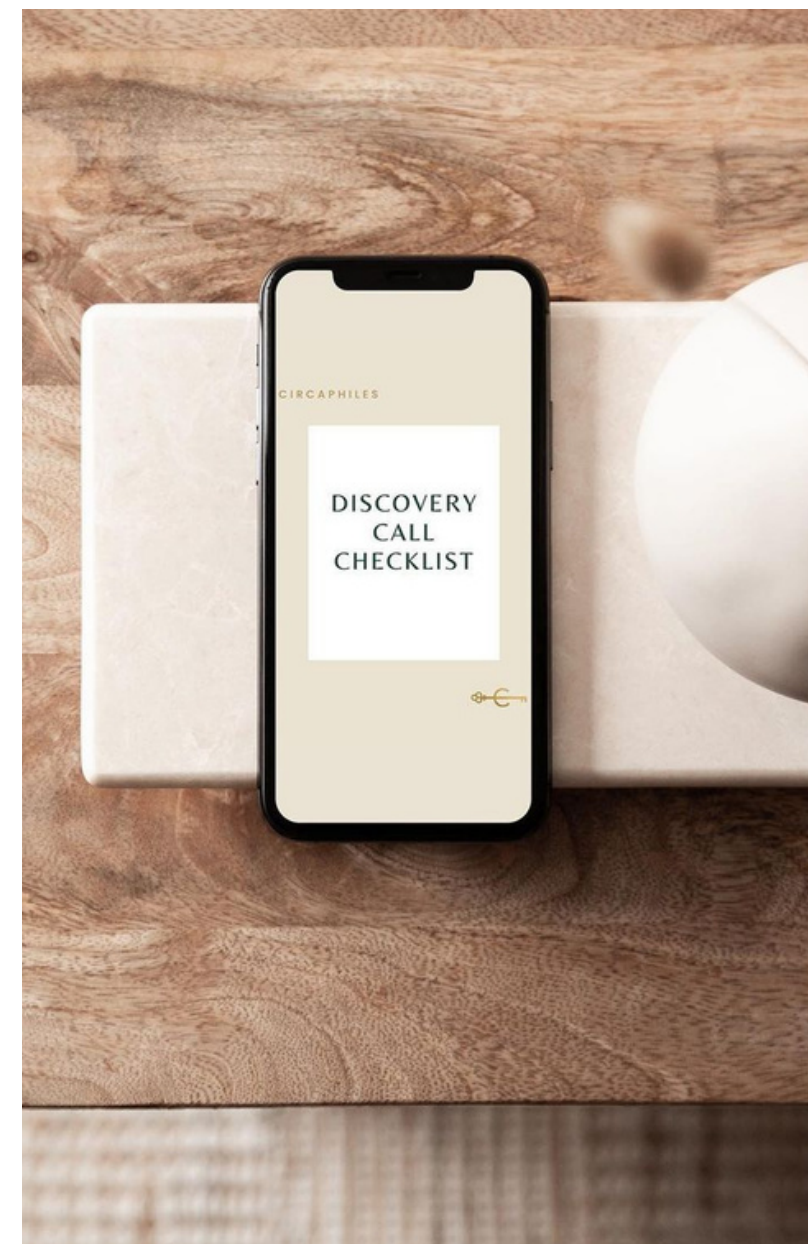

"I believe so much in your mission. I think it would be so awesome for designers to be able to find things like specialty custom gates, or cafe curtain rods, or tumbled stone tile, etc, and not have to call 50 people before they can even start the search. And to be able to have an idea of price points, lead times, and communication before even reaching out to a vendor... will be a game-changer."

“this platform is meant to teach designers how to run projects: the logistics and day-to-day work, how to make a construction timeline, what to specify for a custom sofa—[these things are] so important, and the younger generation of designers needs a leg up before they start working for big firms. we’re working for the future.”
